

ARTIST WHO KILLED WIFE FOR BURGLAR IS FREED BY COURT

Harry Pierce, the young artist who was recently found guilty of murdering his wife in a jealous fit, was today freed by the Superior Court in Boston. The jury, after a deliberation of two days, found the defendant not guilty of the charge of murder, but guilty of the lesser charge of manslaughter. The court then sentenced him to a term of five years in the State Prison.

Pierce was employed as an illustrator in the factory of the Thomas G. Thompson Company. He had been very nervous of late and had a nervous breakdown. He was found by his wife, who was a model, in a room in the factory. She found him with a revolver in his hand and a look of madness on his face. She tried to take the revolver from him, but he shot her in the chest. He then fled from the scene.

The police say that the woman was found lying on the floor, with a fatal wound in the chest. The police also found a revolver in the room. The police then searched the room and found a small box containing a letter from the woman to her father. The letter was dated the day before the murder. It was a love letter and was very tender in tone.

AG agreement between the executive committee of the Packing Room Employees' Association and James Phelan, of the James Phelan & Sons firm resulted in the opening to-day of that factory, which has been closed since Friday last, because of the strike of the 1,400 packing room employees, in which four firms were affected. The settlement was reached on the agreement of an hourly wage scale, the maximum of which would be $1.25 per hour, working hours exceeds the weekly demands of the union. Coincident with its opening, the firm has agreed to accept the new term of curtailment in wages for laid-off employees, which would be $1.00 per hour, strikers' demands. They are the Joseph A. MADE NUN BY HOLY PICTURES

Howard, the former Betasoo road star who has entered the convent of Our Lady of Charity of the Good Shepherd on Angers at Nineteeth street and East River, for making the stage for all time, was not originally a Catholic. It was learned to-day. She entered the convent in September and at the end of her novitiate, seven years hence, she will take the veil.

A close personal friend said: "Miss Howard did not leave the footlights because she was tired of them. She was tired of life and death."

"She decided to take the veil because she aspired to higher things and believed the life of a nun would give her what she lacked," said his friends. "She felt that time had come to make a change and heeding the call she obeyed it. Miss How was born a Protestant and her first interest in Catholicism came through visiting cathedrals abroad, where she was drawn to the beautiful works of art. Gradually she became interested in the religion itself and consulted with Mother Xavier of the convent where she now is."

Until she becomes a member of the order, the former actress is free to leave the convent at any time she wishes, but if she goes forth she will not be easy on her return. At the end of the novitiate she will take the vows, and then she cannot leave the four walls save to go to some other house of the order.

He will reside at Our Lady of Sorrows Church, this city, which will become the headquarters of the Service order in the United States.

Following the recent conviction of politicians for grafting in Boston, municipalities were aroused to an intense pitel of interest to-day by the sensational charge made by Alderman James M. Curley at meeting of the board of Aldermen that James Donovan, chairman of the Democratic City committee, had received $20,000 in graft in the last eight years in connection with the city's city contract.

During four years of the period mentioned, Donovan was said to have received $50 a week from the New England News for the privilege of placing his own advertisements in the superintendent of streets.

Donovan declined to-day that Curley was an "accusator of character" and a malicious liar. He consulted his lawyer to have Curley arrested for libel.

Curley, the Alderman being protected to a certain extent through the privilege of the Alderman.

Will Ask for Proof.

"If he (Curley) makes this accusation outside the Board of Aldermen I shall make him prove what he says," declared Donovan.

Curley was asked if he came to repeat the charges outside of the Board of Aldermen. He refused to do it. This is what he said:

"As long as Mr. Donovan is so positive in his denial of my statement that he is not paid by the city, I will not waste my time. The Sanitary Product Company, let's settle the matter by having an examination of the company's books. I myself am willing to stand outside and watch such an examination by a jury. In our many fruitful things will be brought to light."

"Mr. Donovan says, Mr. Curley, that he

"Donovan's statement that he doesn't know Mr. Merrill or any other officer of the company is on its face absurd. Donovan was superintendent of streets four years, during which period the officers of this company must have visited his office at least once a week."

"Assassinator of Character."

"Mr. Curley is an assassin of character," said Mr. Donovan. "I do not want to enter into any controversy over it in the newspapers, but it is the sort of statement you might expect from Alderman Curley. It is characteristic of the man. It is ridiculous on the face of it."

"As it is, I shall see legal counsel and find out whether it is allowable for him to make such dastardly statements even

"While I was Superintendent of Street Cleaning I did not give any contract to this company. I have always been opposed to letting out the work of the sanitary division to contract. I have unqualifiedly objected and I am unqualifiedly opposed to it now."

"As a general thing I don't pay much attention to what Alderman Corley says. This is not the first time he has made a mistake on my character. At the last meetings of the Taunamy Club he declared that I was one of the incorporators and officers of this company. He said my name was on the books at the State House as such."

"A man was sent to the State House by the police to find my name on the books in connection with this company for it was not there. But when he comes out publicly in the Board of Aldermen and makes such deliberately false charges I feel that it is my duty to myself to strike back vigorously as I can.

Curley never replied to Dr. Donlan's challenge, and the madman's character faded.

Curley then attempted the same idea in his attack on me.

Alderman Curley's charges were made in the form of a public discussion of an order, which he introduced, requiring the city to pay for the cost of selling long term contracts from Corporation Counsel Hanson. He said that he had introduced the order because of the sanitary product concern for the city.

Curley's charges were not made in the form of a public discussion, while the Finance Commission and it is understood that an investigation is being made.

PURITANS TRY TO RUN BOSTON SAYS ZIEGLIN

CHIAUTAUQUE, N. Y., July 27.—In a lecture here Professor Charles Zaehner declared that Puritan America has been driven to the suburbs, but still it is unwilling to trust Catholic Irish Boston to govern itself, and persists in meddling and trying to impose its standards upon the city.

Right within speaking distance of the city is another city, he said, "which is the most democratic government in America, and even a casual visit, even an inspection of the streets, will convince one that the government is admirable, this spirit of not trusting the people because they are a little different is developing. It is a waste to good government.

If we are going to have democracy we must swallow the whole and not just the good part."

VAST CHARITY GIFT PLAN OF ROCKEFELLER

NEW YORK, July 27.—The story of the strange romance between John D. Rockefeller and the newspaper, and the alleged bond appears, from an investigation yesterday, to contain the probability of justification. This investigation took the form of an inquiry into the affairs of the Alerton Realty Company, to which John D. Rockefeller has just transferred $10,000,000 of his fortune, in millions of dollars given him last week by his father.

When the news of this princely gift leaked out it was insinuated that the founder of Standard Oil was merely planning to "bet on the government," and that the money was to be used to pay the inheritance tax, even as he had been accused of "leaking" it out of various other impostes in the days of the building up of the mammoth monopoly.

But this being the case, however, the investigation discloses traces of what may be one of the most generous and disinterested acts ever performed by a prodigal father.

AMERICAN'S INCOME TAX FIGHT VICTOR

WASHINGTON, July 27.—An important step toward the assured success of the New York American's fourteen-year fight for an income tax has been taken today as the House of Representatives passed a resolution which was adopted by the Board of Governors of the respective States to permit the passage of income tax amendments in the situation.

With the passage of this resolution the House the matter of the amendment will be squarely and officially before the States. The House has now decided that income tax will be on. The resolution is as follows:

Resolved by the Senate the House of Representatives concerning the income tax, That the House of Representatives requested to transmit forthwith to the executives of the several States a copy of the resolution of the House of Representatives of amendment proposed by Congress to the Legislature to amend the Constitution of the United States passed July 12, 1909, respecting the income tax, and to request the said executives on incomes to the end that the

SAVED IN FIRE
BY BABY'S CRY

The crying of a five-year-old child saved the lives of two families from death last night as fire broke out in the two-story wooden dwelling at No. 62 Gilman street, Somerville, early today.

William Farrell, who lives in the upper part of the house, was awakened by the cries of the child to find the house filled with smoke and flames shooting up the rear stairs. He called his wife, and, with their two children in their arms, the couple groped through the smoke and confusion to the street, where Farrell pounded on the door of No. 52.

James J. Gilson, who lives on the first floor, was also awakened by the cries of the people and with the assistance of Farrell succeeded in getting his family out of the house in safety. When the apparatus arrived they found the rear hallway a mass of flames. It was some time before the fire was extinguished.

The origin of the flames has caused the Plan to Aid Charity.

The belief at No. 26 Broadway, headquarters of the Oil Trust, is that John D. Rockefeller is planning to distribute the whole of his vast real estate among charities in a way that will insure the of the splendid art of philanthropy solely to his son and heir.

The property was a great plan,
however, it was pointed out in Wall
Street that in carrying it out, John D.
Rockefeller had been unable to overcome the rather practical question which has been so marked in all his business actions—his long career.
The Rockefeller property company as the principal instrument in this grand scheme, he said, would bear the same name. Accordingly, he named the company to be organized and incorporated in Alabama with that name.
To avoid even the slightest suspicion that it was in any way associated with blue stock, the name of the company was changed to Abolition. As incorporators of it he employed his private secretary and chief of staff, Mr. John D. Brown, and added to his employ, Charles O. Heydt and Henry E. Cooper.

Depew Made Objection.

Before the passage of the resolution there was some slight doubt. Senator Brewster objected that the resolution was a mere declaration of the secretary of state, who is an official usually connected with notifying the States of a proposition to amend a constitution.

It was explained, however, that the method proposed by the resolution was the one followed in all the amendments to the Constitution.

The resolution was proposed by Representative Bland, author of the constitutional amendment.

He succeeded in having it passed at the close of the session of the Republican State convention, or Nebraska assembly at Lincoln.

It is expected that this amendment will make the income tax amendment one of the chief planks of its platform, the platform of the party.

This convention will be the first of

The formal statement that the company was formed for the purpose of conducting a real estate business, and that the proceeds in the case of transfers of real estate let the rat out of the bag.

When the news was published that John D. Rockefeller had sold his interest in the property given him recently by his father to the Abetson Realty Company an inquiry into that concern was started, and the facts of the deal with the Rockefeller family were disclosed.

By giving his property to his son, and creating a corporation to own it, he immediately transferred the title to the property to a corporation of which he is the owner, John D. Rockefeller, according to Wall Street, demonstrates that he still was not giving up his belongings, and that his good right hand has lost none of its cunning.

ear, and its action on the tariff and proposed income tax amendment will be looked upon as indicative of the feeling of the entire Middle West on these issues. The convention will be a big one, more than nine hundred delegates having been chosen. The interest is intense.

"I have no doubt the party in Nebraska will take a positive and open stand on the live issues of the day, whether State or National," Senator Brown said. "On the Federal side, I hope the convention will reaffirm the National platform adopted at Chicago last year. I hope it will commend it to the people of Nebraska, and in including the pledge of the platform, the down revision must be retained at par."

"I hope that it will endorse the recommendation of the sixteenth amendment, which, if ratified, will transfer the Federal Government power to lay collect taxes on incomes. I hope the party in Nebraska will ratify the platform that enactment at the first session of Legislature."
